THE GRAND JURY CHARGES:

TIME A.M. ....
P.M. ....

COUNT ONE

On or about the 7th day of March 1972, within the Eastern District of New York, the defendants SOLOMON BROVERMAN, LAWRENCE CESARE, WALLACE CASCIO and EUGENE SANTORE, also known as "Chatch", did wilfully and unlawfully receive and have in their possession a quantity of women's knitted garments, having a value in excess of One Hundred Dollars ($100.00), which goods had been stolen on or about March 3, 1972 from a motortruck belonging to the Arline Knitwear Company, Brooklyn, New York, while moving as a part of and constituting an interstate shipment of freight from New York to New Jersey, the defendants SOLOMON BROVERMAN, LAWRENCE CESARE, WALLACE CASCIO and EUGENE SANTORE, also known as "Chatch", knowing the same to have been stolen. (Title 18, United States Code, Section 659 and Section 2).

COUNT TWO

On or about and between the 6th day of March 1972 and the 7th day of March 1972, both dates being approximate and inclusive, within the Eastern District of New York, the defendants SOLOMON BROVERMAN, LAWRENCE CESARE, WALLACE CASCIO and the defendant EUGENE SANTORE, also known as "Chatch", along with others known and unknown to the Grand Jury, did knowingly and wilfully conspire to commit an offense against the United States, in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 659, by conspiring to knowingly and wilfully receive and have in their possession a quantity of women's knitted garments having a value in excess of One Hundred Dollars ($100.00), which garments had been stolen on or about March 3, 1972 from a motor-truck belonging to the Arline Knitwear Company, Brooklyn, New York, while they were moving as and constituting an interstate shipment of freight from New York to New Jersey, the defendants SOLOMON BROVERMAN, LAWRENCE CESARE, WALLACE CASCIO and EUGENE SANTORE, also known as "Chatch" knowing them to have been stolen.

In furtherance of the said unlawful conspiracy and for the purpose of effecting the objectives thereof, the defendants SOLOMON BROVERMAN, LAWRENCE CESARE, WALLACE CASCIO and EUGENE SANTORE, also known as "Chatch", committed among others the following:

OVERT ACTS

1. On or about March 6, 1972, within the Eastern District of New York, the defendants EUGENE SANTORE, also known as "Chatch", and LAWRENCE CESARE met in Queens, New York.
2. On or about March 7, 1972, within the Eastern District of New York, the defendants SOLOMON BROVERMAN, LAWRENCE CESARE, WALLACE CASCIO and EUGENE SANTORE, also known as "Chatch", met in Brooklyn, New York. (Title 18, United States Code, Section 371).

A TRUE BILL.

UNITED STATES ATTORNEY

1 wool over your eyes. Show them that you will not 2 permit yourselves to be misled. And more important, 3 show these men that you will not permit them to 4 mislead you. Show the defendants that you will not 5 permit them to insult your intelligence. Show these 6 defendants that you will not be forced to throw your 7 logical and common sense out of the window into the 8 trash. Show them that you will not be fooled. Show 9 them by doing your duty as honest jurors and find 10 them guilty on all counts. Thank you.
11

12 THE COURT: Ladies and gentlemen, we are 13 going to take a short recess. I have asked the 14 marshalls to come up and take your luncheon orders.
15 And the alternate jurors may also have lunch with 16 you, or should you be through about 1:00, the 17 alternates can either eat their lunches with you in 18 the witness room, or, of course, if you don't wish 19 to order you may go about your business after you 20 are discharged. But the other jurors should give 21 the luncheon order to the marshall as soon as I 22 have charged you on the law.

23 Do not discuss the case.

24 (Whereupon there was a short recess.)

25 THE COURT: Ladies and gentlemen of the jury,
I am going to give you instructions on the law

1           apropos to this case. Unfortunately, for you, but 2           perhaps fortunate for the people who will have to,
3           if they ever have to read or review my charge, I 4           read the charge to you. This will minimize the 5           risk of errors, and I think it may be more compre-
6           hensive to you. But it does require that you pay 7           particular attention as it is very hard to follow.
8           It will last probably close to forty five 9           minutes. It is going to require a fairly concen-10          trated effort on your behalf and on your part.
11          Now, if my voice starts to fall and any of you 12          cannot hear any portion of it, please, let me know 13          because I do want you to hear all of it.

14                   MR. LOIBARDO: May we do the same thing, 15                   Your Honor.

16                   THE COURT: You may take advantage of this 17                   too. You may move your chairs closer to me.

18                   Now that you have heard the evidence and 19                   the arguments, it becomes my duty to give the 20                   instructions of the court as to the law applicable 21                   to this case.

22                   It is your duty as jurors to follow the 23                   law as stated in the instructions of the court, 24                   and to apply the rules of law, so given to the

1 fact as you find them from the evidence in the 2 case.

3 You are not to single out one instruction 4 alone as stating the law, but must consider the 5 instructions, as a whole.

6 Neither are you to be concerned with the 7 wisdom of any rule of law stated by the court.
8 Regardless of any opinion you may have as to what 9 the law ought to be, it would be a violation of 10 your sworn duty to base a verdict upon any other 11 view of the law than that given in the instructions 12 of the court; just as it would be a violation of 13 your sworn duty, as judges of the facts, to base 14 a verdict upon anything but evidence in the case.

15 You must not permit yourselves to be 16 governed by sympathy, bias, prejudice or any other 17 considerations not founded on evidence and these 18 instructions on the law.

19 Justice through trial by jury must always 20 depend on the willingness of each individual juror 21 to seek the truth as to the facts from the same 22 evidence presented to all the jurors; and to 23 arrive at a verdict by applying the same rules of 24 law as given in the instructions of the court.

1           You have been chosen and sworn as jurors in 2           this case to try the issues of fact presented by 3           the allegations of the indictment and the denial 4           made by the "not-guilty" pleas of the accused.
5           You are to perform this duty without bias or prejudice
6           as to any party. Again, the law does not permit 7           jurors to be governed by sympathy, prejudice, or 8           public opinion. Both the accused and the public 9           expect that you will carefully and impartially con-
10          sider all the evidence in the case, follow the law 11          as stated by the court and reach a just verdict, 12          regardless of the consequences.

13           I am not sending the exhibits which have 14          been received in evidence with you as you retire 15          for your deliberations. You are entitled, however, 16          to see any or all of these exhibits as you consider 17          your verdict. I suggest that you begin your de-18          liberations and then, if it would be helpful to you, 19          you may ask for any or all of the exhibits, simply 20          by sending a note to me through one of the deputy 21          marshalls who will be standing outside your door.

22           An indictment is but a form or method of 23          accusing a defendant of a crime. It is not evidence 24          of any kind against the accused.

25           There are two types of evidence from which a

1 jury may properly find a defendant guilty of a 2 crime. One is direct evidence -- such as the 3 testimony of an eye witness. The other is circum-
4 stantial evidence -- the proof of facts and circum-5 stances which rationally implies the existence or 6 non existence of other facts because such other 7 facts usually follow according to the common ex-
8 perience of mankind. Thus, the foot print of a 9 man in the sand implied to Robinson Crusoe there 10 was another man with him on the desert island and 11 indeed there was, the man Friday. Thus, on the 12 one hand you may have direct evidence on the issue 13 and on the other hand you may have circumstantial 14 evidence of the issue. The law does not hold that 15 one type of evidence is necessarily of better 16 quality than the other. The law requires that the 17 government prove it's case beyond a reasonable 18 doubt both on the direct and the circumstantial evidence.
19 At times the jury might feel that circumstantial 20 evidence is a better quality. At other times they 21 may feel direct evidence is of better quality. That 22 judgement is left entirely to you.

23 As a general rule, the law makes no distinc-
24 tion between direct and circumstantial evidence, 25 but simply requires that, before convicting a

1 defendant, the jury must be satisfied of the 2 defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt from 3 all the evidence in the case.

4 The law presumes the defendants to be 5 innocent of crime. Thus a defendant, although 6 accused begins the trial with a "clean slate"-- 7 with no evidence against him. And the law permits 8 nothing but legal evidence presented before the 9 jury to be considered in support of any charge 10 against the accused. So the presumption of 11 innocence alone is sufficient to acquit a defendant, 12 unless the jurors are satisfied beyond a reasonable 13 doubt of the defendant's guilt after careful and 14 impartial consideration of all the evidence in the 15 case.

16 The burden is always upon the prosecution to 17 prove guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. This burden 18 never shifts to the defendant; for the law never 19 imposes upon a defendant in a criminal case the 20 burden or duty of calling any witnesses or pro-21 ducing any evidence.

22 A reasonable doubt does not mean a doubt 23 arbitrarily and capriciously asserted by a jury 24 because of his or her reluctance to perform an 25 unpleasant task. It does not mean a doubt arising

1 from the natural sympathy which we all have for 2 others. It is necessary for the government to 3 prove the guilt of the defendant beyond all possible
4 doubt. Because if that weren't the rule, very few 5 people would ever be convicted. It is practically 6 impossible for a person to be absolutely sure and 7 convinced of any contraverted fact which, by it's 8 nature, is not susceptible of mathematical 9 certainty. In consequence the law says that a 10 doubt should be reasonable doubt, not a possible 11 doubt.

12 A reasonable doubt is a doubt based upon 13 reason and common sense, the kind of doubt that 14 would make a reasonable person to hesitate to act.
15 Proof beyond a reasonable doubt must therefore be 16 proof of such a convincing character that you would 17 be willing to rely and act upon it unhesitatingly 18 in the most important of your own affairs.

19 The jury will remember that a defendant is 20 never to be convicted on mere suspicion or conjecture.

21 Again, a reasonable doubt that is based on 22 reason and must be substantiated rather than spec-
23 ulative and must be sufficient to cause a prudent 24 person to hesitate to act in the most important 25 affairs of his or her life.

1           The requirement of proof beyond a reasonable 2 doubt rests on the whole case and not on separate 3 bits of evidence. Each individual item of evidence 4 need not be proven beyond a reasonable doubt.

5           The indictment in this case contains two 6 counts, each count charges a separate crime. They 7 must each be considered separately.

8           The indictment names three defendants in 9 all. They are the only persons whose guilt or 10 innocence you must announce in your verdict, although, 11 as I will explain to you shortly, in considering 12 their guilt or innocence, you may have to determine 13 the nature of the participation, if any, of the 14 others. In the determination of innocence or guilt, 15 you must bear in mind that the guilt is personal.
16 The guilt or innocence of a defendant on trial before 17 you must be determined separately with respect to 18 him solely on the evidence presented against him or 19 the lack of evidence. The case of each defendant 20 stands or falls upon the proof or lack of proof of 21 the charge against him, and not against somebody 22 else.

23           Now, the charge in Count One of the indict-24 ment is that on or about the 7th day of March 1972, 25 within the Eastern District of New York, the

1 defendants SOLOMON BROVERMAN, WALLACE CASCIO, and 2 EUGENE SANTORE, also known as "Chatch", did wilfully 3 and unlawfully receive and have in their possession
4 a quantity of women's knitted garments, having a
5 value in excess of One Hundred Dollars ($100.00),
6 which goods had been stolen on or about March 3,
7 1972 from a motortruck belonging to the Arline
8 Knitwear Company, Brooklyn, New York, while moving 9 as a part of and constituting an interstate shipment 10 of freight from New York to New Jersey, the 11 defendants SOLOMON BROVERMAN, WALLACE CASCIO and 12 EUGENE SANTORE, also known as "Chatch", knowing the 13 same to have been stolen. (Title 18, United States 14 Code, Section 659 and Section 2).

15 Now, Section 659 of the United States Code
16 alleged to have been violated reads in pertinent parts:

17 " Whoever steals, or unlawfully takes, or carries 18 away, or by fraud or deception obtains from any motor-19 truck or any other vehicle with intent to convert to 20 his own use any goods or chattels moving as or which 21 are a part or which constitute an interstate or foreign 22 shipment of freight, express or other property of 23 " Whoever buys or receives or has in his 24 possession any such goods or chattels, knowing the 25 same to have been stolen shall be in violation of the law.

1                   Section 2 of Title 18 of the United States
2 Code which Section is also cited in Count One, 3 provides that:

4                   " Whosoever commits an offense against the 5 United States or aids, abets or counsels, commands, 6 induces, or procures it's commission is punishable
7 as a principal.

8                   " Whoever willfully causes an act to be 9 done which if directly performed by him or another 10 would be an offense against the United States is 11 punishable as a principal."

12                   The essential elements of the crime charged 13 which must be proven beyond a reasonable doubt are 14 as follows:

15                   One that the accused had the goods or 16 merchandise in his or their possession;

17                   Two that such goods or merchandise exceeded 18 in value one hundred dollars;

19                   Three that such possession was done knowingly 20 and intentionally;

21                   Four that such merchandise had been stolen 22 or unlawfully taken or carried away from a motor 23 truck while the merchandise was moving as or a part 24 or constituted an interstate or foreign shipment of 25 freight, express or other property; and five that

1 the accused knew such merchandise to have been 2 stolen.

4 It is not necessary that the accused know 5 that the goods or merchandise had been taken from 6 a motor truck while the goods or merchandise were 7 moving as part of the interstate shipment. It is 8 necessary only that the proof show that the accused 9 knew that the merchandise had been stolen.

10 Now, there is no question with respect to 11 the second element of the crime that such goods or 12 merchandise exceeded in value of one hundred dollars.

13 And there is no question with respect to 14 the fact that the merchandise was moving as part of 15 an interstate shipment of the freight at the time 16 that the merchandise was allegedly stolen.

17 And, indeed, as best you can gather from the 18 summation from the counsel there does not seem to be 19 any dispute with respect to the fact that the goods 20 were stolen from the shipment of Arline Knit Wear Co.
21 So the sole questions you are concerned with here are one 22 and five, that the accused had the goods or merchan-23 dise in his or their possession; and five that the 24 accused knew such merchandise to have been stolen.

25 With respect to the question of possession, the law recognizes two kinds of possession. A

1 person who knowingly has direct physical control 2 over a thing at a given time, is then in actual 3 possession of it.

4 A person who, although is not in actual 5 possession, knowingly has both the power and intent 6 at a given time to exercise dominion or control 7 over a thing, either directly or through another 8 person or persons is then in constructive possession 9 of it.

10 The law recognizes that possession may be 11 sole or joint. If one person alone has actual or constructive possession of a thing, possession 13 is sole. If two or more persons share actual or 14 constructive possession of a thing, possession is 15 joint.

16 Possession of property recently stolen,
17 not satisfactorily explained, is ordinarily a 18 circumstance from which the jury may reasonably, 19 but it is not required to draw the inference and 20 find, in light of surrounding circumstances, shown 21 by the evidence in the case, that the person in 22 possession knew the property had been stolen.

23 Ordinarily, the same inferences may reason-
24 ably be drawn from a false explanation of possession 25 of recently stolen property.

1           The term "recently" is a relative term and 2 has no fixed meaning. Whether the property may 3 be considered as recently stolen depends upon the 4 nature of the property, and all the facts and 5 circumstances shown by the evidence in the case.

6           In considering whether possession of 7 recently-stolen property has been satisfactorily
8 explained, you are reminded that, in the exercise 9 of Constitutional rights, the accused need not 10 take the witness stand and testify.

11           There may be opportunities to explain
12 possession by showing other facts and circumstances, 13 independent of the testimony of a defendant.

14           You will always bear in mind that the law 15 never imposes upon a defendant in a criminal 16 case the burden or duty of calling any witnesses
17 or producing any evidence.

18           It is the exclusive province of the jury
19 to determine whether the facts and circumstances 20 shown by the evidence in the case warrant any 21 inference which the law permits you to draw from 22 possession of stolen property.

23           If you find beyond a reasonable doubt from 24 the evidence in the case that the merchandise 25 described in the indictment was stolen from the

1 goods or chattels which constituted interstate 2 commerce and that recently stolen property was in 3 the possession of the accused, you may, but need 4 not, from these facts, draw the inference that the 5 merchandise was purchased, received, or in the 6 possession of the accused, as the case may be, 7 with the knowledge that the merchandise was un-8 lawfully stolen unless possession of the recently 9 stolen property by the accused is explained to 10 the satisfaction of the jury or by other facts 11 and evidence in the case.

13 Again, it is the exclusive province of 14 the jury to determine whether the facts and 15 circumstances shown by the evidence in the case
16 warrant any inference which the law permits you 17 to draw from possession of recently stolen property.

18 One of the elements of the crime charged 19 in each count of the indictment is that a de-20 fendant knew that the merchandise he possessed 21 was unlawfully stolen. And I have already 22 instructed you, that must be proven beyond a 23 reasonable doubt.

24 Knowledge is something that you cannot 25 see with the eye or touch with the finger. It is seldom possible to prove it by direct evidence.

1 The government relies largely upon circumstantial
2 evidence in this case to establish knowledge.

3 In deciding whether the accused knew the 4 merchandise was stolen, you must consider all the 5 circumstances such as how the accused handled the trans-6 action, how he or they conducted himself or themselves.

7 Do his or their actions betray guilty knowledge that he 8 or they were dealing with stolen merchandise, or are 9 his or their actions those of an innocent man or 10 men.

11 Guilty knowledge cannot be established by 12 demonstrating mere negligence or even foolishness 13 on the part of the accused.

14 Knowledge that the goods may be stolen may 15 be inferred from the circumstances that would con-16 vince a man of ordinary intelligence that this is 17 the fact. The element of knowledge may be satis-
18 fied by proof that an accused deliberately closed 19 his eyes to what otherwise would have been obvious 20 to him.

21 Thus, if you find that the accused acted 22 with reckless disregard of whether the merchandise 23 was stolen, and with a conscious purpose to avoid 24 learning the truth, the requirements of knowledge 25 would be satisfied unless the accused actually

1 believed they were not stolen.

2 In this connection you should scrutinize 3 the entire conduct of the accused at or near the 4 time the offenses were alleged to have been committed.

5 If the evidence in this case indicates that 6 a defendant had conspired with persons engaged in crime, 7 as I will hereinafter define for you, or aids and abets 8 them in their plans and purposes, an inference 9 of guilty knowledge can be drawn.

10 The law assumes every man to intend the natural
11 consequences which one standing in his circumstances
12 and possessing his knowledge would reasonably expect 13 to result from his acts.

14 Now, on this question of aiding and abetting, 15 I will read to you Section 2 of Title 18 of the United 16 States Code, it provides that 17 "Whoever commits an offense against the 18 United States, or aids, abets, counsels, commands, 19 induces or procures its commission is punishable as 20 a principal."

21 "Whoever willfully causes an act to be done 22 which if directly performed by him or another would 23 be an offense against the United States, is punishable
24 as a principal."

25 The guilt of a defendant may be established without proof that the accused personally did every 1 act constituting the offense charged.

2 In other words, every person who willfully 3 participates in the commission of a crime may be 4 found guilty of that offense. Participation is 5 willfull if done voluntarily and intentionally, 6 and with the specific intent to do something the 7 law forbids, or with a specific intent to fail to 8 do something the law requires to be done; that is 9 to say, with bad purpose either to disobey or to 10 disregard the law.

11 In order to aid and abet another to 12 commit a crime it is necessary that the accused 13 willfully associated himself in some way with the 14 crime venture, and willfully participated in it as 15 he would in something he wishes to bring about; 16 that is to say, that he willfully seek by some act 17 or omission of his to make the criminal venture 18 succeed.

19 An act or omission is "willfully" done, if 20 done voluntarily and intentionally and with the 21 specific intent to do something the law forbids, 22 or with the specific intent to fail to do something 23 the law requires to be done; that is to say, with 24 bad purpose either to disobey or to disregard the 25 law.

1           You of course may not find the defendants
2 guilty unless you find beyond a reasonable doubt 3 that every element of the offense as defined in 4 these instructions was committed by some person
5 or persons, and that the defendants participated 6 in its commission.

7           Mere presence at the scene of the crime 8 and knowledge that a crime is being committed is 9 not sufficient to establish that a defendant 10 aided, and abetted the crime, unless you find 11 beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant was 12 a participant and not merely a knowing spectator.

13           Guilt may not be inferred from mere 14 association with a guilty party.

15           Now, Count Two of the indictment which is 16 the conspiracy count reads as follows:

17           " On or about and between the 6th day of 18 March 1972, and the 7th day of March 1972, both 19 dates being approximate and inclusive, within 20 the Eastern District of New York, the defendants 21 SOLOMON BROVERMAN, WALLACE CASCIO, and EUGENE
22 SANTORE, also known as Chatch", along with others 23 known and unknown to the Grand Jury, did knowingly 24 and wilfully conspire to commit an offense against 25 the United States, in violation of Title 18, United

1 States Code, Section 659, by conspiring to knowingly 2 and wilfully receive and have in their possession
3 a quantity of women's knitted garments having a
4 value in excess of One Hundred Dollars ($100.00),
5 which garments had been stolen on or about March 3,
7 Knitwear Company, Brooklyn, New York, while they 8 were moving as and constituting an interstate ship-9 ment of freight from New York to New Jersey, the 10 defendants SOLOMON BROVERMAN, WALLACE CASCIO and 11 EUGENE SANTORE, also known as "Chatch" knowing them 12 to have been stolen.

14 In furtherance of the said unlawful conspi-
15 racy and for the purpose of effecting the objectives
16 thereof, the defendants SOLOMON BROVERMAN, WALLACE
17 CASCIO, and EUGENE SANTORE, also known as "Chatch", 18 committed among others the following overt acts:

19 One, on or about March 6, 1972, within the 20 Eastern District of New York, the defendants EUGENE 21 SANTORE, WALLACE CASCIO AND SOLOMON BROVERMAN, met 22 in Queens, New York.

23 Two, on or about March 7, 1972, within the 24 Eastern District of New York, the defendants 25 SOLOMON BROVERMAN, WALLACE CASCIO and EUGENE SANTORE, also known as "Chatch", met in Brooklyn, New York.

Next, 371 of U.S. Title 18 of the United States Codes provides in pertinent part that any offense against the United States, and one or more such persons do any act to effect the object of the conspiracy, each"

Is guilty of an offense against the United States.

The following are the essential elements which are required to be proven beyond a reasonable doubt in order to establish the offense of conspiracy charged in the indictment:

One that there was an agreement or conspiracy between two or more persons to violate the law charged in the indictment;

Two that the conspiracy described in the indictment was willfully formed and existed at or about the time alleged;

Three that the conspiracy was so willfully formed and existing for the purpose of buying goods and merchandise which had been stolen from aboard the truck and which had been moving as or which were a part of or constituted an interstate or foreign shipment of freight, express or other property and had a value in excess of one hundred dollars or for the purpose of receiving or having in the possession of one or more of the conspirators the said goods and merchandise, the accused knowing the same to have been stolen;

1 Four that the accused willfully became a 2 member of the conspiracy;

3 Five that one of the conspirators thereafter
4 knowingly committed one of the overt acts charged 5 in the indictment at or about the time and place 6 alleged;

7 Six that such overt act was knowingly done 8 in furtherance of the object of the conspiracy as 9 charged;

10 Seven that the accused was knowingly and 11 willfully a member of the conspiracy with intent 12 to further one of its objectives.

13 If the jury should find beyond a reasonable 14 doubt from the evidence in the case that existence 15 of the conspiracy charged in the indictment has 16 been proven, and that during the existence of the 17 conspiracy one of the overt acts alleged was know-18 inly done by one or more of the conspirators and 19 its furtherance of some object or purpose or 20 conspiracy, then proof of the conspiracy offense 21 charged is complete, and it is complete as to every 22 person found by the jury to have been willfully 23 members of the conspiracy at the time the overt act 24 was committed.

25 A conspiracy is a combination of two or more

1 persons, by concerted actions, to accomplish some 2 unlawful purpose. So, a conspiracy is a kind of 3 "partnership in criminal purposes", in which each 4 member becomes the agent of every other member.
5 The gist of the offense is a combination or agree-6 ment to disobey, or to disregard, the law.

7 Mere similarity of conduct among the various 8 persons, and the fact they may have associated with 9 each other, and may have assembled together and 10 discussed common aims and interests, does not 11 necessarily establish proof of existence of a
12 conspiracy.

13 However, the evidence in the case need not 14 show that the members entered into any express or 15 formal agreement, or that they directly, by word 16 spoken or in writing, stated between themselves 17 what their object or purpose was to be, or the 18 details thereof, or the means by which the object 19 or purpose was to be accomplished.

20 What the evidence in the case must show 21 beyond a reasonable doubt, in order to establish 22 proof that a conspiracy existed, is that the members 23 in some way or manner, or through some contrivance, 24 positively or tacitly came into a mutual 25 understanding to try to accomplish a common and

2 unlawful plan.

3 The evidence in the case need not establish 4 that all persons charged to have been members of 5 the alleged conspiracy were such. What the evidence 6 in the case must establish beyond a reasonable doubt 7 is that the alleged conspiracy was knowingly formed 8 and that one or more of the means or methods 9 described in the indictment were agreed upon to be 10 used, in an effort to effect or accomplish some ob-11 ject or purpose of the conspiracy, as charged in 12 the indictment, and that two or more persons, in-13 cluding one or more of the accused were knowingly 14 members of the conspiracy as charged in the indict-15 ment.

16 In your consideration of the evidence in 17 the case as to the offense of conspiracy charge, 18 you should first determine whether or not the con-19 spiracy existed, as alleged in the indictment. If 20 you conclude that the conspiracy did exist, you 21 should next determine whether or not each of the 22 accused willfully became a member of the conspiracy.

23 If it appears beyond a reasonable doubt from 24 the evidence in the case that the conspiracy alleged 25 in the indictment was willfully formed, and that a defendant lawfully became a member of the conspiracy

1 either at the inception or afterwards, and that 2 thereafter one or more of the conspirators com-3 mitted one or more overt acts in furtherance of some 4 object or purpose of the conspiracy, then there
5 may be a conviction even though the conspirators 6 may have not succeeded in accomplishing their 7 common object or purpose and in fact may have 8 failed so doing.

9 The extent of any defendant's participation, 10 moreover, is not determinative of his guilt or 11 innocence. A defendant may be convicted as a 12 conspirator even though he may have played only a 13 minor part in the conspiracy.

14 An "overt act" is an act knowingly
15 committed by one of the conspirators, in an effort 16 to effect or accomplish some object or purpose of 17 the conspiracy. The overt act need not be criminal 18 in nature, if considered separately and apart from 19 the conspiracy. It may be as innocent as the act 20 of a man walking across the street, or driving an 21 automobile, or using a telephone. It must, however, 22 be an act which follows and tends towards accom-
23 plishment of the plan or scheme, it must be know-24 inly done in furtherance of some object or purpose 25 of the conspiracy charged in the indictment. It is

1 not necessary that all of the overt acts charged 2 in the indictment were performed. One overt act 3 is sufficient.

4 One may become a member of a conspiracy 5 without full knowledge of all the details of the 6 conspiracy. On the other hand, a person who has 7 knowledge of a conspiracy, but happens to act in 8 a way which furthers some object or purpose of the 9 conspiracy, does not thereby become a conspirator.

10 Before the jury may find a defendant or 11 any other person have become a member of the con-12 spiracy, the evidence in the case must show beyond 13 a reasonable doubt that the conspiracy was knowingly 14 formed, and that the defendant or other persons 15 who are claimed to have been members, willfully 16 participated in the unlawful plan, with the intent 17 to advance or further some object or purpose of the 18 conspiracy.

19 To act or participate willfully means to 20 act or participate voluntarily or intentionally and 21 with specific intent to do something the law forbids...
22 that is to say, to act or participate with bad 23 purpose either to disobey or to disregard the law.
24 So, if a defendant or any other person, with under-25 standing of the unlawful character of the plan, know-

1 ingly encourages, advises or assists, all for the 2 purpose of furthering the undertaking or scheme, 3 he thereby becomes a willfull participant -- a 4 conspirator.

5 One who willfully joins in an existing 6 conspiracy is charged with the same responsibility 7 as if he had been one of the originators, or insti-8 gators, of the conspiracy.

9 In determining whether a conspiracy existed, 10 the jury should consider the actions and the 11 declarations pf all the alleged participants.
12 However, in determining whether a particular defen-13 dant was a member of a conspiracy, if any, the 14 jury should consider only his acts and statements.
15 He cannot be bound by the acts or declarations of 16 other participants until it is established that a 17 conspiracy existed, and that he was one of its 18 members.

19 Whenever it appears beyond a reasonable 20 doubt from the evidence in the case that a con-21 spiracy existed, and that a defendant was one of 22 the members, then the statements<sup>s</sup> thereafter know-23 inly made and the acts<sup>s</sup> knowingly done, by any 24 person likewise found to be a member, may be con-25 sidered by the jury as evidence in the case as to

1 the defendant found to have been a member, even 2 though the statements and acts made may have 3 occurred in the absence and without the knowledge 4 of the defendant, provided such statements and 5 acts were knowingly made and done during the 6 continuancy of such conspiracy, and in furtherance 7 of such object or purpose of the conspiracy.

8 Otherwise, any admission or incriminatory 9 statement made or act done outside the court, by 10 one person, may not be considered as evidence 11 against any person who was not present and did not 12 hear the statement made or see the act done.
13 Therefore, statements of any conspirators which 14 are not furtherance of the conspiracy or made be-15 fore its existence or after its termination may be 16 considered as evidence only against the persons 17 making them.

18 The indictment charges a conspiracy
19 among the defendants Solomon Broverman, Wallace 20 Cascio and Eugene Santore, as well as a man who 21 is not a defendant before you, Lawrence Caesar, 22 all of whom are named in the indictment as co-
23 conspirators. A person cannot conspire with him-24 self and therefore you cannot find any of the 25 defendants guilty unless you find beyond a reasonable

2 doubt that he participated in the conspiracy 3 as charged with at least one other person. With 4 this qualification you may find all of the de-5 fendants guilty or some of the defendants guilty, 6 and some not guilty or all not guilty, all in 7 accordance with these instructions and the facts 8 that you find.

9 Now, I have used the words "knowingly and 10 willfully" up to now during the course of the 11 charge.

12 An act is done "knowingly" if done volun-13 tarily and intentionally, and not because of 14 mistake or accident or other innocent reason.

15 The purpose of adding the word "knowingly" 16 was to insure that no one would be convicted for 17 an act done because of a mistake, or accident, or 18 other innocent reason.

19 An act is done "willfully" if done volun-
20 tarily and intentionally, and with the specific 21 intent to do something that the law forbids that 22 is to say, with bad purpose either to disobey or 23 disregard the law.

24 Knowledge and intent ordinarily may not 25 be proved directly, because there is no way of fathoming or scrutinizing the operation of the 1 human mind. But you may infer a defendant's 2 knowledge and intent from the surrounding circum-

3 stances. You may consider any statement made and 4 done or omitted by a defendant, and all of the 5 facts and circumstances in evidence which indicates 6 his state of mind. It is ordinarily reasonable to 7 infer that a person intends the natural and probable 8 consequences of acts knowingly done and knowingly 9 omitted.

10 Now, as I have said to you several times 11 during the course of the trial, statements and 12 arguments of counsel are not evidence in the case, 13 unless made as an admission or stipulation of fact.
14 When the attorneys on both sides stipulate or 15 agree as to the existence of a fact, you must, unless 16 otherwise instructed, accept the stipulation as 17 evidence, and regard that fact as proved.

18 The court may take judicial notice of 19 certain facts or events. When the court declares 20 it will take judicial notice of some fact or event, 21 you may accept the court's declaration as evidence, 22 and regard as proved the fact or event which has 23 been judicially noticed, but you are not required 24 to do so since you are the sole judges of facts.

25 Unless you are otherwise instructed, the

1 evidence in the case always consists of the sworn 2 testimony of the witnesses, regardless of who may 3 have called them; and all exhibits received in 4 evidence, regardless of who may have produced them, 5 and all facts which may have been admitted or 6 stipulated; and all facts and events which may have 7 been judicially noticed; and all applicable pre-8 sumptions stated in these instructions.

9 Any evidence as to which an objection was 10 sustained by the court, and any evidence ordered 11 stricken by the court, must be entirely disregarded.

12 Evidence does include, however, what is 13 brought out from the witnesses on cross examination 14 as well as what is testified to on direct examina-15 tion.

16 Unless you are otherwise instructed, any-17 thing you may have heard or seen outside of the 18 courtroom is not evidence and must be entirely 19 disregarded.

20 You are to consider only the evidence in 21 the case and your verdict is to be based on the 22 evidence only. But in your consideration of the 23 evidence, you are not limited to the bald state-24 ments of the witnesses. In other words, you are 25 not limited solely to what you see or hear as the

1 witness testifies. You are permitted to draw, 2 from the facts which you find have been proved,
3 such reasonable inferences as you feel are justified 4 in the light of experience.

5 Inferences are deductions or conclusions 6 which reason or common sense lead the jury to 7 draw from facts which have been established by the 8 evidence in the case.

9 I think I have told you several times during 10 the trial, and I will tell you now again, if a 11 lawyer asks a witness a question which contains an 12 assertion of fact, you may not consider the asser-
13 tion as evidence of that fact. The lawyers' state-14 ments are not evidence.

15 Evidence relating to any statement, or act 16 or omission, claimed to have been made or done by 17 a defendant outside of court, and after a crime 18 has been committed, should always be considered with 19 caution and weighed with great care; and all such 20 evidence should be disregarded entirely unless the 21 evidence in the case convinces the jury beyond a 22 reasonable doubt that the statement or act or 23 omission was knowingly made or done.

24 A statement or act or omission is "knowingly" 25 made or done, if done voluntarily and intentionally, and not because of mistake or accident or other innocent reason.

In determining whether any statement or act or omission claimed to have been made by a defendant outside of court, and after a crime has been committed, was knowingly made or done, the jury should consider the age, sex, training, education, occupation and physical and mental condition of the defendant, and his treatment while in custody or under interrogation, as shown by the evidence in the case; and also all other circumstances in evidence surrounding the making of the statement or act or omission, including whether before the statement or act or omission was made or done, the defendant knew or had been told and understood that he was not obligated or required to make or do the statement or act or omission claimed to have been made or done by him; and that such statement or act or omission which he might make or do could be used against him in court, that he is entitled to the assistance of counsel before making any statement, either oral or in writing, or before doing any act or omission; and that he was without money or means to retain counsel of his own choice, an attorney would be appointed to advise to repre-

1 sent him free of cost or obligation.

2 If the evidence in the case does not convince 3 beyond a reasonable doubt that an admission was 4 made voluntarily and intentionally you shall dis-
5 regard it entirely.

6 On the other hand, if the evidence in the 7 case does show beyond a reasonable doubt that an 8 admission was in fact voluntarily and intentionally 9 made by a defendant you may consider it as evidence 10 in the case against the defendant who voluntarily 11 and intentionally made the admission.

12 Admissions of the defendant, if you find 13 any have been made, are amongst the most effectual 14 proofs in the law, and constitute the strongest 15 evidence against the party making it than can be 16 given of the fact stated in the admissions.
17 Accordingly you are entitled to give great weight 18 to any defendant's admission in the case as against 19 any defendant who made them.

20 You, as jurors, are the sole judges of the 21 credibility of the witnesses and the weight their 22 testimony deserves.

23 You should carefully scrutinize all of the 24 testimony given, the circumstances under which each 25 witness has testified, and every matter in evidence

1 which tends to show whether a witness is worthy of 2 belief. Consider each witness' intelligence, motive 3 and state of mind, and demeanor and manner while on 4 the stand. Consider the witness' ability to observe 5 the matter as to which he has testified and whether 6 he impresses you as having an accurate recollection
7 of these matters. Consider also any relation each 8 witness may bear to either side of the case; the 9 manner in which each witness might be affected by 10 the verdict; and the extent to which, if at all, 11 each witness is either supported or contradicted 12 by other evidence in the case.

13 Inconsistencies or discrepancies in the 14 testimony of a witness, or between the testimony of 15 different witnesses, may or may not cause the jury 16 to discredit such testimony. Two or more persons 17 witnessing an incident or a transaction may see or 18 hear it differently; and innocent misrecollection, 19 like failure of recollection is not an uncommon
20 occurrence. In weighing the effect of a discrepancy, 21 always consider whether it pertains to a matter of 22 importance or an unimportant detail, and whether 23 the discrepancy results from innocent error or 24 intentional falsehood.

25 After making your own judgement, you will

1 give the testimony of each witness such credibility, 2 if any, as you may think it deserves.

3 An accomplice is one who 4 unites with another person in the commission of 5 a crime, voluntarily and with common intent.
6 An accomplice does not become incompetent as a 7 witness because of participation in the crime charged.
8 On the contrary, the testimony of an accomplice 9 alone, if believed by the jury, may be of sufficient 10 weight to sustain a verdict of guilty even though not 11 corroborated or supported by other evidence.
12 However, the jury should keep in mind that such 13 testimony is always to be received with great 14 caution and weighed with great care.

15 You should never convict a defendant upon 16 the unsupported testimony of an alleged accomplice, 17 unless you believe that unsupported testimony
18 beyond a reasonable doubt.

19 The law does not prohibit the use of an 20 accomplice, but whether you approve of their use 21 is not to enter into your consideration of this 22 case. In certain types of crime the government, 23 of necessity, is frequently compelled to rely upon 24 the testimony of accomplices, persons with criminal 25 records, or informers. Otherwise, it would be

1 difficult to detect or prosecute some wrongdoers,
2 and this is particularly true in conspiracy cases.
3 Often it has no choice in the matter. It must take 4 the witnesses to the transaction as they are.

5 It is the universal rule in the Federal 6 Courts that defendants may be convicted on testimony 7 of an accomplice standing alone if you believe 8 such testimony beyond a reasonable doubt. This 9 would still be so even though the accomplice was 10 a confirmed criminal.

11 There are several other persons whose names 12 you have heard during the course of this trial 13 and one or more of the attorneys have referred to 14 their absence from this trial. Neither of the 15 defendants, nor the government may benefit from the 16 absence of such witnesses. or, ... possible
17 witnesses because each side has an equal oppor-
18 tunity, or lack of opportunity, to have them testify.
19 If either side had wanted any of them here, so 20 far as the record shows, they had equal opportunity 21 to get them and absence should not affect your 22 judgement in passing on this case or in determining 23 the guilt or innocence of the defendants.

24 Bear in mind, of course, that the law
25 never imposes upon the defendant in a criminal case

1 the burden of producing or calling any witnesses
2 or producing any evidence.

3 The testimony of a witness may be dis-
4 credited or impeached by showing that he previously 5 made statements which are inconsistent with his 6 present testimony. The earlier contradictory 7 statements are admissible only to impeach the 8 credibility of the witness, and not to establish 9 the truth of the statements. It is the province 10 of the jury to determine the credibility, if any, 11 to be given the testimony of a witness who has 12 been impeached.

13 If a witness is shown knowingly to have 14 testified falsely concerning any material matter, 15 you have a right to distrust such witness' tes-16 timony in other particulars, and you may reject 17 all of the testimony of that witness or give it 18 such credibility as you may think it deserves.

19 A defendant who wishes to testify, however, 20 is a competent witness; and the defendant's tes-21 timony is to be judged in the same way as that of 22 any other witness.

23 The law permits a defendant, at his own
24 request to testify on his own behalf. The testimony 25 of an individual defendant is before you. You must determine how far it is credible. The deep

1 personal interest which every defendant has in 2 the result of his case should be considered in 3 determining the credibility of his testimony.
4 You are instructed that interest creates a motive
5 for false testimony; that the greater the interest 6 the stronger is the temptation, and that the 7 interest of a defendant is of a character poss-8 essed by no other witness and is, therefore, a 9 matter which may seriously affect the credence that 10 should be given to his testimony.

11 The law does not compel a defendant in a 12 criminal case to take the witness stand and 13 testify, and no presumption of guilt may be raised, 14 and no inference of any kind may be drawn, from 15 the failure of a defendant to testify.

16 As stated before, the law never imposes 17 upon a defendant in a criminal case the burden or 18 duty of calling any witnesses or producing any 19 evidence.

20 It is the duty of the attorney on each 21 side of the case to object when the other side 22 offers testimony or other evidence which the 23 attorney believes is not properly admissible.
24 You should not show prejudice against an attorney 25 or his client because the attorney has made

1 objections.

3 Upon allowing testimony or other evidence
4 to be introduced over the objection of an attorney, 5 the court does not, unless expressly stated, 6 indicate any opinion as to the weight or effect of 7 such evidence. As stated before, the jurors are 8 the sole judges of the credibility of all witnesses, 9 and the weight and effect of all evidence.

10 When the court has sustained an objection
11 to a question addressed to the witness the jury 12 must disregard the question entirely, and may 13 draw no inference from the wording of it, or 14 speculate as to what the witness would have said 15 if he had been permitted to answer any question.

16 The fact that the court has asked on or 17 more questions of a witness for clarification or 18 admissibility of evidence purpose is not to be 19 taken by you in any way as indicating that the 20 court has any opinion as to the guilt or innocence 21 of the defendants in this case, and you are to 22 draw no such inferences therefrom. That deter-23 mination is up to you and you alone based on all 24 of the facts in the case and the applicable law 25 in these instructions.

You are here to determine the guilt or

1 innocence of the accused from the evidence in the 2 case. You are not called upon to return a verdict 3 as to the guilt or innocence of any other person or 4 persons. So, if the evidence in the case convinces 5 you beyond a reasonable doubt of the guilt of the 6 accused, you should so find even though you 7 may believe one or more other persons are guilty.
8 But if any reasonable doubt remains in your minds 9 after impartial consideration of all the evidence 10 in this case, it is your duty to find the accused 11 not guilty.

12 The verdict must represent the considered
13 judgement of each juror. In order to return a 14 verdict, it is necessary that each juror agree 15 thereto. Your verdict must be unanimous.

16 It is your duty as jurors, to consult with 17 one another, and to deliberate with a view to 18 reaching an agreement, if you can do so without 19 violence to individual judgment. Each of you 20 must decide the case for himself but do so only 21 after an impartial consideration of all the evidence 22 in the case with your fellow jurors. In the course 23 of your deliberations, do not hesitate to reexamine 24 your own views, and change your opinion, if con-25 vinced it is erroneous. But do not surrender your

1 honest conviction as to the weight or effect of 2 evidence, solely because of the opinion of your 3 fellow jurors, or for the mere purpose of returning 4 a verdict.

5 Remember at all times, you are not partisans.
6 You are judges -- judges of the facts. Your sole 7 interest is to seek the truth from the evidence in 8 the case.

9 There is nothing peculiarly different in 10 the way a jury should consider the evidence in a 11 criminal case, from that in which all reasonable 12 persons treat any question depending upon evidence 13 presented to them. You are expected to use your 14 good sense; consider the evidence in the case for 15 only those purposes for which it has been admitted 16 and give it a reasonable and fair consideration, 17 in light of your common knowledge of the natural 18 tendencies and inclinations of human beings.

19 If the accused be guilty beyond a reasonable 20 doubt say so. If not so proved guilty, say so.
21 You must render a verdict with respect to each of 22 the three individual defendants ~~as to~~ each of the two 23 Counts of the indictment that I have described to 24 you.

25 If any reference of the court or by counsel

1 to matters of evidence does not coincide with 2 your own recollection, it is your recollection 3 which should control during your deliberations.

5 The punishment provided by law for the 6 offenses charged in the indictment is a matter 7 exclusively within the province of the court, and 8 should never be considered by jury in any way, in 9 arriving at an impartial verdict as to the guilt 10 or innocence of the accused.

11 Now, upon retiring to the jury room, juror 12 number one, the young lady sitting closest to the 13 court in the print dress will act as your forelady 14 unless she chooses not to do so, in any event 15 you will elect a foreman or a forelady amongst 16 your number to preside over your deliberations, and 17 will be your spokesman here in court.

18 If it becomes necessary during your 19 deliberations to communicate with the court, you 20 may send a note by the marshall, signed by your 21 forelady, or one or more members of the jury. No 22 member of the jury shall ever attempt to communicate 23 with the court by any means other than a signed 24 writing, and the court will never communicate with 25 any member of the jury on any subject touching the merits of the case otherwise than in writing, or

1 orally here in open court.

2 You will note from the oath about to be 3 taken by the bailiffs that they too, as well as 4 all other persons, are forbidden to communicate 5 in any way or manner with any member of the jury 6 on any subject touching the merits of the case.

7 Now, bear in mind that you are never to 8 reveal to any person -- not even to the court -- 9 how the jury stands, numerically or otherwise on 10 the question of the guilt or innocence of the 11 accused, until after you have reached a unanimous 12 verdict.

13 If, as and when you have reached a unanimous 14 verdict you will write me a note saying -- don't 15 write in the note what the verdict is. Just state 16 that you have reached a verdict. And when called 17 in open court at that time you will state what the 18 verdict is.

19 You are not to write me a note stating how 20 you stand numerically or otherwise. If you so state 21 that in a note or here in open court before you have 22 reached a unanimous verdict it may be necessary
23 to declare a mistrial and go through the expense
24 of another trial. Don't do that. One jury did 25 that. But don't you do it.

2 Take a five minutes recess, all of you
3 including the alternates will go into the next 4 room and wait until I have discussed certain legal 5 matters with counsel, at the conclusion of which 6 I will ask you to return and the alternates will 7 be dismissed, and then you may begin your deliber-
8 ation and not until then. Do not discuss the case 9 until then.

10 (Whereupon, the jury left the courtroom).

11 MR. LEVIN-EPSTEIN: The charge is satis-
12 factory to the government, Your Honor.

13 THE COURT: Mr. Lombardo.

14 MR. LOMBARDO: Your Honor, the defendants 15 object to Your Honor's charge substantially with 16 the words that the defendants have equal power of 17 subpoena and may subpoena witnesses. I say that 18 because the witness to which I referred has not 19 been called by the government, or by the people, 20 was a government witness-- actually a government 21 agent. And I think perhaps I am aware what Your 22 Honor says subsequently, namely that the burden 23 of proof is on the prosecution at all times. But 24 I think the earlier charge ,
25 might cause confusion in the jurors' minds.

THE COURT: Any reason why you couldn't

1 have subpoenaed the witness?

2 MR. LEVIN-EPSTEIN: I don't think counsel's
3 statement is a valid statement, because the defense 4 could have subpoenaed the witness and all the other 5 witnesses are in jail.

6 MR. LOWMEADO: Well, I wasn't concerned with 7 that aspect, the ones in jail. I made no issue of 8 that.

9 THE COURT: You did not, but Mr. Passalacqua
10 did.

11 MR. LOWMEADO: But I take exception as it
12 applies to my client. That is the only exception 13 that I would have. I would ask Your Honor in 14 conjunction with that exception that Your Honor 15 charge the jury along the lines that I have indi-16 cated in my exception.

17 THE COURT: No.

18 MR. LOWMEADO: I respectfully take exception, 19 Your Honor.

20 THE COURT: Mr. Murphy?

21 MR. MURPHY: First of all, I have good 22 news. I have no objection to the failure of the 23 witnesses to take the stand as charged by the court
24 as presented in the context of the charge. I 25 thought it was fair. I do object as to the

1 testimony of the charge didn't charge as to the 2 interest of an accomplice. You didn't put in the 3 charge the interest on the part of the defendant 4 not to take the stand.

6 THE COURT: I don't think the interest of 7 an accomplice need to have been expressly charged.
8 I did put in the general charge, but I didn't 9 include the general interest charge. I did it with 10 respect to the general charge in considering each 11 witness' outcome of the case.

12 MR. MURPHY: Well, I make the objection as 13 to the failure to make that remark with respect 14 to my client.

15 THE COURT: With respect to the accomplice, 16 I don't intend to amplify that.

17 MR. MURPHY: You also stated that reasonable 18 doubt might rise from the lack of evidence as well 19 as presented evidence.

20 THE COURT: Well, I think that is implicit.
21 I talked about the lack of evidence at one point, 22 I think it was in connection with one of the re-
23 quests that the government asked to find him guilty 24 on the evidence, or the lack of evidence. I think 25 I covered that.

MR. PASSALACQUA: I have no exception to the

1 court's charge.

2 THE COURT: Have you finished, Mr. Murphy?

3 MR. MURPHY: Yes, I have finished, Your 4 Honor.

5 THE COURT: And you have --

6 MR. PASSALACQUA: I have no exceptions.

7 THE COURT: Well, I am going to tell them
8 that you are going to lunch between now and 2:15 9 and to hold their questions until after that.

10 Bring in the jury.

11 (Whereupon the jury was brought back into 12 the courtroom).

13 THE COURT: Alternate jurors, your time
14 has come, and as I say I don't know whether you 15 have ordered lunch or not, but if you did order 16 you may go through that door closest to me here 17 (indicating), and walk across the hall and wait 18 until lunch, and then you may go downstairs and 19 check out for your jury services for today. Make 20 sure that they have you recorded for yesterday. I 21 am sure they have, but make sure. I think your 22 term is finished and you go with the thanks of the 23 court. I thank you for patience in listening to 24 the case, but on the other hand, you don't have 25 the problem of wrestling with a verdict and how

2 long it will take. If any of you have anything in 3 the jury room would you go and get it out.

4 Marshalls, would you step forward, please.

5 (Whereupon the marshalls are duly sworn in 6 by the Clerk).

7 THE COURT: Now, ladies and gentlemen, I 8 am going to let the attorneys go to lunch between 9 now and roughly 2:15. So if you start conjuring
10 up any questions I want to ask you to hold them 11 until that time, then you may send me a note at 12 2:15. Of course, you may begin your deliberations 13 as soon as you have retired, and you may continue 14 to deliberate while you are eating lunch, but that 15 is up to you. So, from this point on, you are on 16 your own. You may discuss the case.

17 (Whereupon the jury left the jury room).

18 THE COURT: Gentlemen, if anyone or more 19 exhibits are asked for, you would normally want to 20 be present when they are asked for, but if you want 21 to waive that right, in other words, if they ask 22 for A, B, or C, or any statement or statements I 23 would normally require that you be present when they 24 make that request before giving it. If you want 25 to waive that right, it is up to you, and you will let me know.

1 MR. LOMBARDO: I will leave it up to Your
2 Honor.

3 MR. PASSALACQUA: I will leave it up to 4 Your Honor.

5 MR. MURPHY: I will leave it up to Your 6 Honor.

7 THE COURT: Of course, any question for 8 anything specific, if there is anything ambiguous 9 about the request, do you want to leave it to my 10 discretion?

11 MR. MURPHY: Definitely.

12 THE COURT: Mr. Levin-Epstein, do you want 13 to leave it to my discretion their request for any 14 exhibits?

15 MR. LEVIN-EPSTEIN: Requests for physical 16 exhibits, yes, of course.

17 THE COURT: All right.

THE COURT: Well gentlemen, they would like the definition of knowledge as pertaining to this case and then, would like to have the signed statement of Mr. Broverman and the two consent slips to the search, according to this note.

I assume they want the various instructions on the question of knowledge.

There are several portions that pertain to knowledge beginning with the possession of recently stolen property portion and then I gave them several other portions that pertain to knowledge and as I recall I read the Government's request No.18 and then gave them two general definitions of knowledge, knowing and willful and knowledge and intent.

MR. MURPHY: Your Honor, if you are going to have the recent possession of stolen property I would ask that the mere presence charge submitted by the defense also bears on knowledge.

THE COURT: I will give that.

MR. LEVIN-EPSTEIN: Here are Government Exhibits 3, 7 and 14, all in evidence; Government Exhibit 3 being the consent to search form executed and signed on June 28, 1974; Government Exhibit 7 being the consent

1 to search, July 19, 1974 by Mr. Broverman and of course, 2 Government Exhibit 14 which is the signed statement.
3 Shall I give this to the deputy clerk or marshal?

4 THE COURT: Give it to Mr. Dunseith.

5 THE CLERK: Court Exhibit 1, one jurors' note.

6 (So marked.)

7 (Jury entered jury box.)

8 THE COURT: Now, I have your request, ladies
9 and gentlemen, and I think I have isolated the portions 10 of the charge pertaining to knowledge and I will 11 re-read them to you.

12 If after hearing them you feel there is some-13 thing else you wish to have re-read to you on this 14 question, of course I will be glad to do so.

15 I have also separated the exhibits which we 16 will send with you when you retire again.

17 Now, right after defining possession I started 18 on the question of knowledge as follows:

19 Possession of property recently stolen, if not 20 satisfactorily explained, is ordinarily a circumstance 21 from which the jury may reasonably, but it is not 22 required to draw and find, in the light of surrounding 23 circumstances, shown by the evidence in the case, that 24 the person in possession knew the property had been 25 stolen.

1 Ordinarily, the same inferences may reasonably 2 be drawn from a false explanation of possession of 3 recently stolen property.

4 The term "recently" is a relative term, and has 5 no fixed meaning. Whether the property may be 6 considered as recently stolen depends upon the nature 7 of the property, and all the facts and circumstances 8 shown by the evidence in the case.

9 In considering whether possession of recently 10 stolen property has been satisfactorily explained, you 11 are reminded that, in the exercise of Constitutional 12 rights, the accused need not take the witness stand and 13 testify.

14 There may be opportunities to explain
15 possession by showing other facts and circumstances,
16 independent of the testimony of the defendant.

17 You will always bear in mind that the law never 18 imposes upon a defendant in a criminal case the burden 19 or duty of calling any witnesses or producing any 20 evidence.

21 It is the exclusive province of the jury to 22 determine whether the facts and circumstances shown by 23 the evidence in the case warrant any inference which 24 the law permits you to draw from possession of stolen 25 property.

1           If you find beyond a reasonable doubt from the 2 evidence in the case that the merchandise described in 3 the indictment was stolen from goods or chattels which 4 constituted interstate commerce and that recently 5 stolen property was in the possession of the accused, 6 you may, but need not, from these facts, draw the 7 inference that the merchandise was purchased, received 8 or in the possession of the accused, as the case may be, 9 with the knowledge that the merchandise was unlawfully 10 stolen unless possession of the recently stolen 11 property by the accused is explained to the 12 satisfaction of the jury by other facts and evidence in 13 the case.

14           Again, it is the exclusive province of the jury
15 to determine whether the facts and circumstances
16 shown by the evidence in the case warrant any inference 17 which the law permits you to draw from possession of 18 recently stolen property.

19           One of the elements of the crime charged in each 20 count of the indictment is that the defendant knew that 21 the merchandise he possessed was unlawfully stolen. As 22 I have already instructed you, that must be proven
23 beyond a reasonable doubt.

24           Knowledge is something that you cannot see with 25 the eye or touch with the finger. It is seldom

1 possible to prove it by direct evidence. The 2 Government relies largely upon circumstantial evidence 3 in this case to establish knowledge.

4 In deciding whether the accused knew the 5 merchandise was stolen, you should consider all the 6 circumstances such as how the accused handled the 7 transaction, how he or they conducted himself or 8 themselves. Do his or their actions betray guilty 9 knowledge that he or they were dealing with stolen 10 merchandise, or are his or their actions those of an 11 innocent man or men.

12 Guilty knowledge cannot be established by 13 demonstrating merely negligence or even foolishness on 14 the part of the accused.

15 Knowledge that the goods may be stolen may be 16 inferred from the circumstances that would confince 17 a man of ordinary intelligence that this is the fact.
18 The element of knowledge may be satisfied by proof that 19 an accused deliberately closed his eyes to what 20 otherwise would have been obvious to him.

21 Thus, if you find that the accused acted with 22 reckless disregard of whether the merchandise was 23 stolen, and with a conscious purpose to avoid learning 24 the truth, the requirements of knowledge would be 25 satisfied unless the accused actually believed they

1           were not stolen.

2           In this connection you should scrutinize the 3           entire conduct of the accused at or near the time the 4           offenses were alleged to have been committed.

5           If the evidence in this case indicates that a 6           defendant has conspired with persons engaged in crime 7           or aids and abets them in their plans and purposes, 8           an inference of guilty knowledge can be drawn.

10          consequences which one standing in his circumstances
11          and possessing his knowledge would reasonably expect 12          to result from his acts.

13          Now, bear in mind, in connection with this 14          general subject -- I also instructed you more 15          specifically in the aiding and abetting definition in 16          connection with that -- but in connection with this 17          general subject, bear in mind that mere presence at 18          the scene of a crime and knowledge the crime is being 19          committed is not sufficient to establish that the 20          defendant aided and abetted the crime unless you find 21          beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant was a 22          participant and not a spectator.

23          Guilt may not be inferred from mere association 24          with a guilty party.

25          Generally, on the question of knowledge, I also
